Name of Material: Kdg I Have Who Has games

Assembly/printing instructions: The directions remain the same for making all Tools of the Mind I Have Who Has games: Print the game double sided onto cardstock paper, then cut on the dotted lines to create individual cards. The number of sets you need to make for each version of I Have Who Has will vary on your class size and whether it is done in small groups or pairs of children.

Activities this material is used in:

I Have-- Who Has? Letter Names, uppercase (A-M, N-Z, A-Z)
I Have-- Who Has? Letter Names, lowercase (a-m, n-z, a-z)
I Have-- Who Has? Letter Names, uppercase-lowercase (A-m, N-z, A-z)
I Have-- Who Has? Word Patterns
I Have-- Who Has? Sounds
I Have-- Who Has? Colors
I Have-- Who Has? Shapes
I Have-- Who Has? Numerals (1-30)
I Have-- Who Has? Sight words
I Have --Who Has? Count By (10's, 5's, 2's, 3's)

Practically Speaking: Children handle these cards quite often, we suggest you make them very durable by printing on cardstock and laminating. These cards may need to be replaced if they become too tattered. Teachers have suggested you print each version on a different color so that it is easier to keep them separated.

__NOTE:__ For most I Have Who Has games, children can say, "I have—(name or picture on front of card), who has—(name or picture on back of card)?"; however, for the Categories, Animal Babies, and What Animals Eat, the phrase will need to be changed as described below:

Categories game-- "I have (category), who has something that goes with (item)?"

Animal Babies game—"I have (baby animal's name), who has (animal name's) baby?"

What Animals Eat game—"I have (animal), who eats (food)?"
